

Security Services for Spirion

Organizations should know where their data resides at any moment in time, but when they do not, it increases risk to data security and regulatory compliance.

If you cannot find your data, then how can you protect it?

Spirion discovers, classifies, and remediates sensitive data-at-rest. Knowing where the data resides is the first step in protecting it, but without a comprehensive program or a team to design, deploy, optimize, and manage, organizations cannot scale, consume the discovered data, or keep up with constantly changing data regulations. This is where Cloudrise's deep data expertise can take your program to the next level and achieve maximum results.

Challenges Organizations Face

Due to ever-changing and diverse workforce environments, employees are introducing new devices, apps, cloud environments... and DATA every minute of every day.

Data discovery is highly intrusive by design and not all organizations are prepared to consume the outputs of the technology and prioritize next steps.

Selecting the right tech for your business is not easy – plus – comprehensive solutions require skilled interpretation and application to keep your data awareness current.

How Data Discovery Addresses These Challenges

Insight and Decision Making. Data discovery makes data analysis understandable for stakeholders across the business, regardless of their data literacy.

Prevents Data Mishandling. Discovering sensitive data and appropriately classifying that data can significantly reduce the risk of data mishandling.

Improves Downstream Processes. Downstream processes and organizations' abilities to protect their data will improve when data is discovered, inventoried and classified.

Improved Risk Management & Compliance. Data discovery helps businesses spot outliers and potential threats in their data so they can manage them more proactively.

Cloudrise Security Services

As an extension of your team, Cloudrise will discover and protect your data wherever it resides and maximize the value of your Spirion investment.
